

Lizzy Stewart

Children's book illustrator and comic book artist, Lizzy Stewart, when drawing herself, draws herself walking - striding confidently across the urban scene. Her latest book, called "Walking Distance" is a personal account of the way she sees her life out and about on foot - she argues that walking is the 'clearest way to participate in life'. Her work touches on themes of how women are observed in the city, both in reality and on film, as well as revealing insights into her creative process and her own ways of working. Recorded in and around the gardens surrounding the Horniman Museum in south east London on a February day in 2020. 22'08" 10.4MB
