

Anasthasia Polychronidou

Andrew Stuck is with Greek dramaturg, Anasthasia Polychronidou, at the Walking Art Encounter in Prespes, in western Macedonia and they are trying to keep out of the sun. There is not a lot of shade, but they've discovered that if they walk in a circuit around the local chapel, at least two of the sides of the building offer them a little respite from the extreme heat.

"The Shared and the Personal", Anastasia's recent work focuses on the socio-political aspects of performance, particularly for women artists, in public spaces in her native city of Thessaloniki. The interview opens with Andrew asking her, about what has brought her to Prespes. 21'54" 10.3MB

Anastasia recommends two walks:

1. Take a repetitive walk
2. Walk in a group and leave a socio-political gesture in public space
